The Apollo Concert Company

This company will appear in Segver's opera hall Friday evening as the next number in the Barton Improvement Club Lyceum course. After an absence of a year from the Lyceum concert platform, the old-favorite Apollo Concert Company returns better than ever. The year was spent in Australia and New Zealand where this company gave the first Chautauqua programs ever given in those far-away lands.

There's plenty of snap and go in an Apollo program, while the Apollo phone and Saxophone quartets add bigness and volume. While the company devotes itself primarily to the presentation of high-class instrumental music in a popular way, there are readings, vocal solos, musical readings, pianologues, etc., adding great variety and given in a most attractive manner.

The Apollos are likable folks, with a charmingly informal platform manner, and a feature of their work often favorably commented upon is their frank interest in their audiences, and the reciprocal interest of the audience in them. Single admission tickets at Pierce's.

Free Lecture on Russia.

Ernest L. Rand of Burlington will give a lecture on his work in Russia Monday, February 9th, in Alumni hall. This is given under the direction of the National War Work council, educational service. Mr. Rand has a large display of costumes to exhibit. Everyone should make an effort to attend. There is no admission charge.

BARTON GETS ANOTHER LARGE NEW INDUSTRY

Woolen Concern Will Build Plant Immediately and Invest More Than $100,000

George A. Fairbanks of Newport, N. H., of Fairbanks & Redfield, woolen manufacturers, was in Barton Thursday and completed negotiations for four acres of land belonging to F. W. Comstock just north of Barton village, bordering the B. & M. railroad tracks, on which a two-story brick factory 150-58 feet will be erected.

New machinery will be installed and the investment will no doubt reach considerably over $100,000. About 50 persons will be employed at the start.

Associated with Geo. A. Fairbanks in the business will be Harold Fairbanks, son of Geo. A., and Horace Redfield, a son-in-law of Mr. Fairbanks. All are familiar with the business.

Following so soon the location of the New York concern of Wessel, Nickle & Gross in Barton, the place is to be heartily congratulated.

Real-Estate Activities

Real estate is very active in Barton, as indicated by the following sales reported in the past week.

C. A. Nute has purchased the so-called "Woodman" lot on the west side of Main street. This is the largest and most available site for a business block in town and the transfer undoubtedly presages improvement on the property.

Arthur Laroque has purchased of H. R. Cutler the large house known as the "Nelson" house on South Main street near the Seaver block. It is reported that Mr. Laroque will put the barn connected with this property into tenements.

L. A. Chadburn has purchased of C. H. Hanson the house on Elm street known as the "Benton" house and taken immediate possession.

C. H. Willard has purchased the Butler house on High street which he has been occupying for some time. These transfers with others recently reported indicate a most healthy movement of real estate.

The last week in January closed strong with its record of cold. Set on Sunday morning the thermometer registered at 40 degrees below zero, and even colder is reported. Many water pipes were frozen and with the coal shortage the outlook has been far from encouraging. However the past two or three days have been much warmer.

The Donald Manufacturing Company of Springfield, Mass., has hired the ground floor and basement of the Nye Shop, so called, on Water street. It has installed a 20-horse power electric motor, two new lathes, and will manufacture bowling alley pins. The company will employ several men.

The Afternoon Study Club were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Barrows, Thursday, Jan. 29. Twenty-nine members and six visitors were present. Also neopolitan ice cream with pineapple sauce, wafers and coffee. An error occurred in the notice last week. The paper on William Lloyd Garrison and Wolfgang Mozart was both written and read by Mrs. E. R. Cook.

Wessel, Nickle & Gross.

One of the bits of publicity Barton is getting with the location of this new industry is the following taken from the Burlington Daily Free Press. It gives the public more idea of this piano action manufacturing business than anything yet published. The article says:

"Wessel, Nickle & Gross, a New York firm manufacturing the highest grade piano actions in the world, working the small maple pieces that enter into the action to the one-thousandth part of an inch, has purchased a mill property in Barton and plans to build a dry kiln in the town as soon as the first frost is out of the ground. The firm is capitalized at $50,000, but has a surplus of nearly $100,000. It is already buying maple logs and will saw them out in its mill. The company expects to employ at least 50 men and may double that number by the winter of 1920. Other developments are planned during the summer. The firm will use about 600,000 feet of lumber a year.

"It is understood that this firm employs about 500 hands altogether and plans to bring its business back to the pre-war basis when it had fully 700 hands employed. It is planning to make wood novelties from the waste in its mills. Although no definite statement has been made in the matter, it is thought that the company intends eventually to move its entire business to Barton, keeping only an assembling, storage and shipping station in New York.

The town of Barton grants the company a low electric power rate, exemption from taxation, and a small water concession is granted by the village.

It is said that this firm sells only to the highest grade piano makers. Its cheapest action is higher, by considerable than the highest grade action made by any other concern. The business was established by the elder Wessel, Nickle & Gross 47 years ago, the founders being deceased at this time.

"A number of towns in the state were trying to get this firm to locate within their boundaries. Mr. Wessel, one of the firm members, stated that the main reason for its leaving New York was to get next to the timber supply."

Big Freight Wreck at Newport

Spreading rails threw a freight train of 50 cars on the Boston and Maine railroad into a wreck early Tuesday morning between Newport and Beebe. Thirty-one cars were derailed and piled up or rolled down the embankment. The engines held to the tracks. None of the crew was hurt. Wrecking cars worked much of the day to clear the line. The damage is estimated to be about $100,000.

Barton Academy

The students were glad to welcome Mr. Merrill on his return to school Wednesday morning.

The junior class had charge of chapel exercises Friday afternoon. The program was different from the others but it was very interesting. The life of Melba, the famous Italian soprano, was read by Mildred Ford and then one of Melba's records was played on the victrola. The life of John McCormick was next read by Roy Howe and the record "Only You," sung by John McCormick, was played. Another selection by a celebrated author was also played. The exercises closed by the students singing, "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground."

The Barton basketball team played Richardton last evening. The score was 16 to 39 in Richard's favor.

The third edition of the school paper, "The Barton Academy Shingle," was read Monday afternoon. The editors were Miss Storrs, Ida Whitcher and Roy Howe. Those of the next issue will be Mr. Lyon, Clarence Hazen and Marion Seavey.

The first and second years of the high school went on a strawride to Glover, at Mr. Alexander's Monday evening. Games were played and delicious refreshments were served. Everyone enjoyed the evening and also the ride.

There will be a basket ball game Tuesday evening, Feb. 10, 1920 at 7.30 p. m. B. A. vs. town team. The game will be at twelve. Good music in attendance. Admission to game 25 cents. Admission to dance 75 cents per couple.

Rowell Praised as Hotel Publicist

Guy Rowell, formerly of this place is going higher and higher up the ladder of success as a hotel publicity man. A recent copy of "Keeler's Hotel Weekly," published in San Francisco where Mr. Rowell did hotel publicity work before going to New York where he is now doing the work for the five great Bowman hotels, the Biltmore, Commodore, Manhattan, Belmont and Murry Hill hotels, speaks of Mr. Rowell and his work as follows:

"And then we are proud that the man who has designed and originated this folder is Guy S. Rowell, for many years publicity and advertising man of the Hotel St. Francis. Rowell is a little man with big brains, has made good with a punch in New York, that blase, cold-blooded, cruel metropolis where only the very fittest survive and where the weak and inefficient are mercilessly ground to pieces.

Rowell is in charge of all the publicity work for the Bowman hotels and since his arrival there has received many flattering offers of splendid position. He has refused them all, including the latest—most flattering of all—from San Francisco."

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Lime Beginning to Roll into This County.

During the next two or three weeks a large number of farmers in this county will be kept busy unloading the cars of lime. The manager of the Farmers' Exchange reports that he has recently sent in to two different lime concerns orders for 460 tons of lime. A few farmers now ordering lime direct and local dealers and fertilizer agents will doubtless handle some lime so that the tonnage used in this county this year will run well over the 500-ton mark.

This situation speaks well for the work of the Farm Bureau. Due to the hearty cooperation of a group of interested Farm Bureau committeemen, over 40 farmers out of the 100 or more have been persuaded to use lime that otherwise would not have done so. Ten out of the 13 lime and clover committeemen in the county have reported that over 200 tons of lime would be used as the result of their efforts.

The tonnage used this year should be, but the beginning. With over 100,000 acres of land in crops in Orleans county, we can afford to use thousands of tons of lime in the next few years. More clover and less purchased feed will be the result.

Every town in the county will use some lime but the town of Glover leads with a total of 79 tons. Greensboro, a close second, will use 56 tons. The large tonnage to be used in Glover is due to the work of the Farm Bureau committeemen, H. S. Clark, C. F. Wright and B. R. Buchanan. These men have thought lime, talked lime and boosted lime. It's up to some other community now to pass that record. This lime project of the Farm Bureau will not be finished until a majority of the farmers of this county are using lime as a regular part of their farming operations.

What About Lime Distributors?

With all this lime coming into the county, it might be well to consider methods of distributing this on the land. Many have used the shovel and hand method in the past but this method is slow, laborious and far from satisfactory, due to the uneven distribution. Some men have used a manure spreader to good advantage by first putting in a layer of manure and then spreading so many bags of lime evenly over the floor, depending on the number of loads per acre at which the spreader is set. Even this way is not wholly satisfactory. To obtain really good results some sort of a distributor is necessary. There are a number of types of these machines on the market.

One type that has given very good service has a movable bottom and side so that when the machine is in operation the bottom slowly rises forcing the lime out of the hopper over one side. There is no possible chance of clogging in this type. Another make is the ordinary line and fertilizer distributor covering a space eight feet wide when in operation. Still another and somewhat novel type of distributor is attached to the end of any wagon body and drives from a sprocket on the wagon wheel. This spreads material 16 feet and can handle up to 30 or 40 tons a day.

Detailed information has been received at the Farm Bureau office in regard to a few of these machines and efforts are being made at present to learn more concerning the other makes on the market. At the present price of labor, farmers cannot afford to spread lime with a shovel or by hand to say nothing of the uneven distribution. These machines cost from $55 to $90 apiece. Two or three farmers living near each other could very handily use one machine between them. The various lime and clover committeemen in this county are kept supplied with information concerning these various distributors. Anyone interested will do well to get in touch with one of these men or notify the Farm Bureau office.

All-Day Meetings.

As was announced last week, all-day meetings will be held in the following communities next week: West Glover, Tuesday, Feb. 10th. Glover, Wednesday, Feb. 11th. Brownington, Thursday, Feb. 12th. Separate meetings will be held in all these communities for men and women. Miss Bertha Holden of the extension service will give talks and demonstrations for the women while F. D. Jones, county agent in Lamoille county, and H. F. Johnson will meet with the men. Morning sessions open at 10 o'clock, afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. Dinner served at noon by the ladies. No one can afford to miss attending these gatherings.

County N. E. M. P. A. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the county N. E. M. P. A. will be held in School hall at Newport Saturday afternoon, Feb. 14th. Every local in the county should be sure that delegates are present at this meeting.

Sheriff E. J. Hill of Newport under date of January 26th, sent the following to deputy sheriffs in Orleans county. The warning ought to be sufficient.

"My attention has been called to several instances where animals are suffering from cold, and sometimes from hunger. Particularly, that horses are allowed to stand on our streets without proper protection from the cold.

"Now if we, as officers of the county and towns, would give this matter more attention we would be able to do a work to be proud of, and save a lot of suffering. Many animals are kept in cold barns and sheds and must suffer.

"The law is very plain in regard to cruelty to animals. Let us use it when necessary. Use other means when we can. Speak first and give good advice; but if not heeded, then go the limit."

Improvement Club Notes

"To promote the general welfare prosperity and improvement of the village of Barton" are the words which are found in our charter. Action has been taken to this end with well known results. However the work for Barton's boosters is only begun. The securing of the new industries is only the first step in the realization of our purposes. Much remains to be done, a great part of which will appear less interesting but which is absolutely necessary to the carrying out of our aims and ambitions for Barton. We must prepare to house our new citizens, make them neighbors and friends, prosperous and contented. This is no small task in itself but with the splendid cooperation now manifest, Barton can and will meet and solve the problems as they present themselves.

THE GRAHAM TRIAL

Case Affords Little Sensation, Ex-Governor Takes Stand

The trial of Ex-Gov. Horace P. Graham of Craftsbury on the charge of larceny and embezzlement of state funds while he was state auditor, is on its third week. Little sensation is afforded by the testimony, which is often of a technical nature.

One of the principal state witnesses was the present auditor of accounts, Benjamin Gates. He said Mr. Graham did not notify him of overdrafts when he succeeded Graham as auditor. When the matter was brought to Graham's attention, Graham said he would fix it up. Asked why he made these overdrafts, Gates testified that Mr. Graham said he had to do it to save himself from bankruptcy and that C. S. Page was the man who was crowding him.

On the stand Mr. Graham denied ever having made any such statement to Mr. Gates, there never having been any cause for such a statement as he did not owe Senator Page.

Reference has often been made during the trial to matters connected with the "Greensboro Gulf road" built during Mr. Graham's administration as state auditor. Court adjourned from Friday to Monday in order that Mr. Graham might go to his home in Craftsbury and produce cancelled checks in connection with payments made on this road work.

These were personal checks given to M. B. Johnson of Craftsbury, builder of the road, who had testified that the personal checks of Mr. Graham facilitated his banking and that he preferred them to state orders. The checks numbered 20 and were offered in evidence. The checks drawn by Mr. Graham on the Newport and Bethel banks were identified by him, they being from April, 1915, to 1917 and representing orders of $39,000, paid out in the interests of the state. The total so paid out was $33,200. These checks include $6,000 to Mr. Bates.

In cross examination Mr. Graham said he thought he had a right to draw orders regardless of salary and expenses on funds of departments.

"Beyond salary and expenses of office did you consider you had a right to draw beyond that amount?" he was asked.

"Yes, provided I had calls from other departments."

"What calls did you have you could not give an order for?"

"Not any, I suppose."

The oath of state auditor was introduced and read. The witness said he knew he was owing a balance to the state in 1906.

"You used the money to your own personal advantage?" Graham was asked.

"Probably."

"Any doubt about it?"

"No, sir."

The witness then said he used the money in personal accounts and the account of Graham & Skinner, and thought he had the right to use the money until he made an accounting and settlement.

"Why did you stop at $19,000?" Attorney General Archibald demanded.

"I thought I ought not to take any more money than I could account for," was Graham's reply.

"If you had a right to take $19,000 would you not have the right to take ten times that amount?" asked Mr. Archibald.

"That might be true," replied the witness.

The witness said former Former State Treasurer E. H. Deavitt, as his, Graham's attorney, had gone about the state seeking a loan for him, secured by a mortgage on his real estate. He did not suggest to Mr. Deavitt, he said, whom he should see.

CAMP WESTMORE PLANS

Company to be Reorganized on Still Larger Scale.

There is a movement now on foot to reorganize the "Camp Westmore Co." and place it on a firmer financial basis. The camp is at the present time in a somewhat uncertain condition financially, and without a manager, as Russell G. Bancroft will not continue his work there this year.

As a camp, "Westmore" is ideal. People who are familiar with the summer camps in the country, agree that there is no more beautiful spot in America; no more desirable location for a summer camp; and nowhere better buildings and equipment than those found here. It is more like a country club than a girls camp. It is situated on a hill commanding a view of Lake Willoughby at a considerable distance from any other cottages. On a grassy slope overlooking the water, is a row of tiny "kiosks," the sleeping quarters of the girls. At some distance above these is situated the main building beautifully fitted with the most costly furniture, rugs, and draperies. Here are found the reception room, office, study-rooms, and the living quarters of the instructors. Just back of this is a large open pavilion used for dining hall and assembly room, and a great perfectly equipped kitchen.

Extensive grounds provide ample opportunities for all kinds of outdoor sports. The lake at this point is well suited to accommodate both the expert swimmers and the younger beginners.
